I met a black guy. He had blue hair and he was wearing an earring.

I met a ginger and he was the only ginger I met in my hometown. He was drinking coffee / a cup of coffee and eating a bunch of cookies.

I was participating in a festival and there was a guy who had his/the whole body covered by tattoos. He had the three sixes on his forehead. He was sitting at the bar and he was talking to ___ people around him and he said the dream of his life was to learn to spit blood.

I met a blonde girl who was very nice because she had four eyes, three heads, and wings.

I saw a man who looked like my brother. He had a different beard and its color was different from the color of his hair.

I was coming back home and I saw a young man sleeping in front of the door of the dormitory. He had a lot of blood on his face.

On Wed, we were in a pub, and there was a drunk guy who was making a cigarette and when he wanted to close it, he ate it.

Should vs. supposed to:

At one point, the audience ~~should~~ ☹️ was supposed to 😊 decide how it WAS going to continue.

Supposed to: The bus is supposed to arrive at 5pm. I am supposed to meet a friend at Marta this evening.

[something expected or agreed to]

Should: You should visit your grandmother more often. You should leave Aktorka early so you will be able to go to English. You shouldn't eat crunchy food in class.

[Recommendations or moral obligations]

[I suppose he will come. = predpokladam, ze prijde.]

The whole/entire stage

All the people [plural!!!!]

All the shops have Marcipan Kofola.

Almost all the Czechs like horrible fish soup for Xmas.
